

Further development of a scientific journal

EDITORIAL

The members of our editorial board comprise competent experts in dental traumatology carefully selected for their experience and knowledge in various fields. You may have noticed that we from this year also have chairmen for the different sections of the editorial board. The reason is to enable further development in each section by having a responsible leader who knows the research field and the researchers who are currently active in trauma related projects.

Development of the field of dental traumatology is driven both by the traditional dental specialties and for this reason we have specialty-oriented sections but also driven by other, more multidisciplinary fields such as epidemiology, social aspects, education, diagnostics, sports dentistry and prevention. We have also realized that there is also a need for a special section for development of evidence-based dental traumatology and study design.

With this organization we expect a strong development of the journal also in the future. As a reader you are probably also interested in the further development of Dental Traumatology. Please be involved in this development and do not hesitate to contact me or a section chairman with your ideas of further development.
