

Trauma and today's media

EDITORIAL

There are situations when traumatic dental injuries are of minor importance in life as compared to the severe trauma and destruction caused by recent worldwide natural disasters such as earthquakes, tsunamis, flooding, war and unrest. Internet, satellite television and other social media today bring us closer to places and people subjected to such traumatic situations. We have access to detailed and updated information more than ever before in history. Do not forget that these modern media also give us a chance to react by communicating and supporting each other. Our thoughts are with our colleagues and their families all over the world who are currently involved in such disasters.

Lars Andersson

Editor in Chief

e-mail: dr.lars.andersson@gmail.com

This document is a scanned copy of a printed document. No warranty is given about the accuracy of the copy. Users should refer to the original published version of the material.