

Recognizing Our Reviewers

While I hesitate to repeat myself, I am pleased to inform you that 2007 was yet another record-breaking year for the Journal of Prosthodontics! While writing this editorial in mid-November, we have already received 215 manuscripts—50 more manuscripts than we received in all of our record-breaking 2006. Because of greatly increased number of excellent new submissions, the Journal was able to begin bimonthly publication in 2006. Then, in 2007 we added 20 pages to each issue of the Journal. Despite these overall improvements in the Journal, and in addition to our increased rejection rate, which now exceeds our acceptance rate, we still need additional space. As of January 2008, we will publish eight issues annually in an effort to reduce the overall time between acceptance and publication.

Keeping up with this nonstop stream of manuscripts can seem overwhelming at times, but thanks to our outstanding cadre of reviewers, the Journal of Prosthodontics continues to provide authors with timely, detailed, and helpful reviews. Without this group of dedicated reviewers, the growth of the Journal would be impossible. In addition to those members of our Editorial Review Board listed on the Journal's masthead, the reviewers listed below have been essential to the Journal of Prosthodontics's continued success in 2007. For their efforts, I give my utmost and sincere thanks to each of them.
