

Erratum

In (1), additional Supporting Information is available in the online version of the article and should have been included:

Interview S1: Water consumption beliefs and practices in a rural Latino community: Implications for adequate fluoride exposure in vulnerable communities

Please note: Wiley-Blackwell is not responsible for the content or functionality of any supporting information supplied by the authors. Any queries (other than missing material) should be directed to the corresponding author for the article.

The following Acknowledgements should have also been included:

This study was supported by a grant from the National Institute of Dental and Craniofacial Research (grant # U54 DE 14251) to the Center to Address Disparities in Children's Oral Health (CAN DO Center) at the University of California, San Francisco (Jane A. Weintraub, DDS, MPH, Principal Investigator). Judith C. Barker, PhD, was Principal Investigator on the Center's specific study Number 9 titled "Rural and Urban Water Consumption Patterns in Latino Populations" on which this article is based. We would like to thank Dr. Kathleen O'Connor, Ana Cervantes and Alex Cervantes for their assistance in recruiting and interviewing study respondents, as well as to extend our gratitude to the community members who took part in this study.

We apologize for these errors.

Reference

1. Scherzer T, Barker JC, Pollick H, Weintraub JA. Water consumption beliefs and practices in a rural Latino community: implications for fluoridation. Journal of Public Health Dentistry. 2010;70:337-43. doi: 10.1111/j.1752-7325.2010.00193.x.

Copyright of Journal of Public Health Dentistry is the property of Wiley-Blackwell and its content may not be copied or emailed to multiple sites or posted to a listserv without the copyright holder's express written permission. However, users may print, download, or email articles for individual use.