

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Reply

The authors would like to thank Dr Evereklioglu for his detailed correspondence in connection with our recent review. It was not our intention to denigrate the role of Dr Behçet or other authors in any way by the use of the term Adamantiades syndrome. Nor was it our intention to mislead the reader with respect to the preferred term being Behçet's syndrome. However, as Dr Evereklioglu states, there has been a significant number of articles which have used this term and hence it was felt appropriate to make reference to it.

We hope the above, together with the details provided by Dr Evereklioglu, clarifies the situation and will enable the reader to make an informed decision.
